Essential Information

Also called Venice of the North for its gorgeous canals, the capital of the Netherlands encompasses everything Dutch – the freedom, the quirkiness, the culture. Tolerant and progressive, the city’s attitude will welcome you with open arms and never let you go. You could visit the medieval city center and the picturesque houses of the Beijhgof. Explore the various art galleries and museums here – the Rembrandt House Museum exhibiting works of Amsterdam’s most famous artist might be a good place to start. And do not forget about the canals and their serene beauty which will transport you into another world. Alternatively, take in the new Amsterdam of the 21st century. Friendly breweries selling Heineken and other beverages, atmospheric coffeeshops, nightclubs bustling with life and alternative festivals are only a few of the places you could visit. The city has many faces and is willing to show them all.

Currency: Euro, €1 = 100 cents

You can exchange your currency at any bank and there is also a special office inside the Central Station. Avoid the unofficial money exchanges; most of them will only scam you. Credit cards are accepted at most stores and restaurants – keep an eye out for their stickers on doors. You will need cash for smaller businesses.

Tax Refunds

There is a VAT refund available to non-EU citizens. The VAT is 19% and you need to spend a minimum of €50. Make sure you get a Tax-Free form from the store at the time of your purchase. Fill out the form with your receipt attached and show the completed forms and the items you purchased at your final departure from the European Union. The customs authorities will stamp your documents. (Make sure not to put the purchased items in your checked luggage.) Then claim the refund through the store’s affiliate – chances are it will be either Global Blue or Premier Tax Free. These companies have their offices at the airport, so you can get your money back immediately.

Electricity
The standard electricity supply in the Netherlands is 230 volt – 50 Hz AC. The plugs have two round pins. Remember to bring an adapter or converter if you need it.

Languages
The national language is obviously Dutch, which you can understand easily if you know a Germanic language. Other than that, you’ll be just fine with English, German or French – the people are proud of their language skills here. A few local phrases might be useful, as always, especially when talking to the elderly.

Mobile Phones
The whole country is covered by the GSM 900/1800/GPRS/HSPDA network. European mobile phones should work fine, visitors from the US and Asia might need to check compatibility. There are five operators in total running the network. The international access code for the Netherlands is +31.

The city code for Amsterdam is (0)20.

Internet
You can use your hotel/hostel’s Wi-Fi internet connection most of the time. The local pubs and cafés often offer free internet access, too. Avoid overpriced hotspots. Internet cafés usually charge around €2, but are slowly dying out.

- Easter Sunday
- Easter Monday
- 30 April – Queen’s Day
- 5 May – Liberation Day (official holiday every 5 years; the next one is in 2015)
- Ascension Day – 40 days after Easter

- Pentecost Monday – 7 weeks after Easter
- 25 December – Christmas Day
- 26 December – 2nd Christmas Day

Official institutions such as banks, post offices and others are completely closed on these days, while museums and shops have special opening hours.

Opening Hours
Most businesses are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, while shops are open even on Saturdays. Supermarkets usually stay open until 10 p.m.. Amsterdam is a large city, so the shops stay open longer and some of them open on Sunday afternoon.

Museums close on Christmas Day, New Year’s Day and other holidays (see Holidays below). Otherwise, they are open from 10 a.m. to 5-6 p.m. every day. However, they may have varying conditions, so always check the museum website before you visit.
Public Transportation
The Netherlands has a fine-grained network of train and bus transport, making it easy to travel the country. Especially larger cities such as Amsterdam and Rotterdam are well-connected. When traveling by train, always buy your ticket in advance.

The city of Amsterdam is widely covered by public transport. To use it, you are required to buy a PT Smart Card (OV-chipkaart), an electronic card that can be charged with money. Paper tickets are no longer used. Do not forget to always check in and check out with the card, or else it may not be valid anymore. The card can be bought at one of the offices of the public transport company.

Alternatively, if you are visiting for a short time, there are 24-hour and 2-7-day card tickets available which allow for unlimited travel in the timespan. The prices for these start at €7.50, the 7-day ticket costs €31. The tickets can be bought at one of the offices of the public transport company, in hotels, tourist offices, metro stations or from bus, tram and metro drivers and conductors (only the 24-hour ticket).

Metro – a quick way of travelling to the more distant districts. There are four lines in total which run in different directions; a fifth one is under construction.

Trams – mostly used for shorter distances within the city center. There are 18 lines in total, closely connected to the metro stations.

Buses – with 55 buses, the Amsterdam network is quite dense and provides an alternative if you do not want to take the metro or the tram.

Train – the quickest way of getting from one end of the city to another. Also used for trips to other cities.

Ferry – Amsterdam is a marine city and as such, you can use its ferry service for transport to north parts of Amsterdam. Ferries leave from the Central Station every 30 mins. You can take your bike or moped along on the ferry.

Regular transport runs from 6 a.m. to 00:30 a.m.. Then, you can use one of the night buses which run on different fares. One card costs €6 and is valid for two hours. Alternatively, a 12 trip card for €30 can be bought at the same places as the chipkaart.

9292.nl is a handy website where you can search quickly for public transport connections. (9292.nl)

Taxis
Amsterdam is currently in the middle of liberalizing the taxi business. As such, many scammers have started operating their own taxis. Try to find a taxi rank instead of flagging down taxis on the street, or call 1888.

The initial fare is €7.86, but the first two kilometers of the trip are included. The maximum price for a kilometer is €2.30. The fares are always displayed on the fare card on the taxi window. When you start the trip, make sure the taxi meter is running to avoid scams.

Tuk-tuk transport has developed in Amsterdam as an alternative to taxis. More economical and greener than taxis, the tuk-tuks use a zone system. A one person ride inside one zone costs €3.50 and you pay €3.50 for each additional zone. Call +31 900 99 333 99.

Regional Transportation
Amsterdam is a well-connected city and trains running through the whole of the Netherlands stop here. Traveling by train is best if you want to explore the rest of the country; going to another city shouldn’t take more than three hours. Trains also run to other major European cities, mainly in France, Belgium and northern Germany.

Driving
- Speed limits in Dutch cities – 50 km/h (31 mph)
- Outside the cities – 80 km/h (49 mph)
- Highways – 120 km/h (74 mph)
- The blood alcohol limit – 0.5 pro mille; 0.2 pro mille for drivers under 24

Always wear a seatbelt, even in the backseat – it is the law. Talking on or even holding a cell phone while driving is illegal. Drive on the right. Buses have the priority when pulling out of the stop. Trams have priority everywhere except where signposted.

Amsterdam is not a car-friendly city. Unless you are going to the countryside, renting a car will only slow you down, since roads in Amsterdam are narrow and marking are almost non-existent. Your best bet is to park your car outside the city center and take public transport. North Amsterdam still has free parking.

Walkability
Getting around Amsterdam could be a little exhausting because of its size, but you should definitely walk around the medieval center and its canals. However, the most natural way of getting around is by bike. Everyone rides them and the city is full of bike rental spots and bike-friendly roads. It is a cheap and safe method of transport as long as you follow basic precautions. Prices for one day of bike rental are about €10.

- Bitterballen and kroketten – fried meatballs
- Bamiblok – Asian-influenced noodle dish
- Drop – liquorice sweets

Beer is Amsterdam’s most popular beverage – the world-famous Heineken calls the city its home. There are dozens of different brews to try here, either at pubs or at special beer tastings which take place at breweries.

Legal Age
Some bars open early, some later, but the closing hour is 1 a.m. during the weekdays and 3 a.m. on the weekend. The legal drinking age is 16 for low-alcoholic drinks and 18 for the rest.

The Netherlands in general is well-known for its liberal drug policy. Cannabis and hashish can be bought at coffeeshops for personal use by anyone over 18, at a quantity of no more than 5 grams per person; the selling of hallucinogenic mushrooms is forbidden. Every coffeeshop must have a license. Smoking tobacco in coffeeshops is forbidden.

Shopping

Cheese and beer are some of the Netherlands’ most delicious treats and are great souvenirs. Alternatively, you could choose the typical pink pottery or other crafts to take home.

Amsterdam is an important art center of Northern Europe, artwork bought from one of the galleries makes for a unique gift.

DOS AND DO NOTS

- DO try to explore the city on a bicycle, but make sure to plan your route in advance and always read the pamphlet you’re given while renting the bike.
- DO take a boat tour and marvel at the city from a different perspective.
- DO avoid the unofficial taxis.
- DO try the local eateries and dishes, even though Dutch cuisine is not the most famous in the world.
- DO NOT step into the bicycle lanes, you could get hurt.
- DO NOT buy soft drugs on the street, always find a licensed coffeeshop.
- DO NOT take photographs in the red light district.

Safety

The Netherlands as a whole is a generally safe country, so long as you follow common precautions. Petty street crime is the most common, so watch out for pickpockets.

The tap water in the Netherlands is safe to drink and even said to be some of the best in the world.

In Amsterdam, be careful around the crowded tourist spots and in the trams, as that’s where the pickpockets gather and work. Do not carry valuables around or if you need to, make sure you hide them in your bag. If you have your credit card stolen, contact the local police and they will help you. There are also several areas better to be avoided after dark – use your common sense.
